Commissioning policy

Cosmetic treatment is surgery or non-surgical medical treatment carried out solely to change a person's appearance to achieve what they feel is a more desirable look.

Cosmetic treatment is not routinely commissioned. An appendix to this policy lists commonly encountered cosmetic procedures which are not commissioned except under the circumstances described, but this policy applies to ALL treatment which is being carried out for cosmetic reasons.

It excludes surgery to repair and reconstruct missing or damaged tissue that has occurred through accident or illness. It may be difficult to restore normal appearance and this exclusion does not constitute an ongoing agreement to fund surgery until an ideal appearance is achieved. Under normal circumstances the reconstructive surgery is commissioned when it is part of an ongoing package of treatment for the accident or illness, including where the patient has chosen to defer taking a decision on the surgery. Once the patient has been discharged from this treatment plan further procedures are not routinely commissioned.

The revision of treatments originally carried out outside of the NHS is not routinely commissioned.

Rationale for the decision

The ICB is responsible for ensuring that the treatments provided for the local population represent the best use of the NHS budget allocated to them for their population's health services. The ICB has to choose how to use its funds carefully to ensure that the local population has access to the healthcare that is most needed and that people with equal need have equal opportunity to access treatments.

This inevitably means that difficult decisions need to be made. Unfortunately, some treatment that patients might wish to receive cannot be funded or is only offered under certain circumstances. This approach is consistent with other NHS organisations who buy healthcare for their local communities. Cosmetic treatments are considered a low priority for use of healthcare funds.

Guidance notes on exceptionality

Where the circumstances of treatment for an individual patient do not meet the criteria described above exceptional funding can be sought. Individual cases will be reviewed by the appropriate panel of the ICB upon receipt of a completed application from the patient's GP, consultant or clinician. Applications cannot be considered from patients personally.

Please see panel policies for guidance on submitting applications for cosmetic treatments.
